LAST Saturday we paid a visit to Mr. Cairns' new brewery near the electric light works, which is a very neat, suitable and compact structure fully capable of carrying on the requirements of the business in an efficient manner, and is a valuable acquisition to the industries of the town. Mr. Cairns started the Portage la Prairie brewery in 1879 and later controlled the Northwest brewery of that place which was burned down last summer. Mr. Cairns began to brew about three weeks ago and has made several brewings since. When we visited the brewery the energetic proprietor with three assistants was bottling up the last few bottles of a recent brew. There were in the cellar about 2,000 gallons of beer in barrels, and different shelves of bottled ale marked as many different brewings. At present he is turning out about 1,500 gallons per week; but the plant is capable of turning out 600 gallons per day or more than double the amount it is doing at present. Already about $6,000 has been invested in the enterprise; but improvements are still to be made and on Saturday last work was begun upon the foundation of a malting house, for at present the malt is purchased in Winnipeg. Mr. Cairns deems it more profitable to manufacture his own malt, hence this new addition. A small amount of beer and porter has been put upon the market, some in town and some in the outlying villages, which is highly spoken of by those who have tasted it. The brewery is now in active operation, ready to receive orders and do business with the public; an adequate stock is kept in the cellar for disposal and the machinery is now in such running order as to keep pace with the demands that may be made upon it. In placing his product upon the market so early after coming here Mr. Cairns has shown an undoubted enterprise worthy of public encouragement.

LIBEL CASE.

On Friday last the case of Regina vs Milne was again resumed before Mr. Sutter, J. P. when the following evidence was taken:—

Louis Apoux sworn said through Rapache interpreter: I came from Felix in France. I left there the 29th of March 1893. I lived six weeks in Winnipeg and after that lived in British Columbia. I came to Edmonton the last of April 1894. I had one child with me called Paul Henri Apoux. He is now dead. He died in this building. He was brought here by the Mounted Police. At the age of 4 years he was a sickly boy and had fits. I never saw him have any fits before coming to Edmonton since the age of 4 years. He was 14 years old on the 14th of May 1894. I know Mallette. I know Father Fouquet. When I first came to Edmonton I stopped at Mr. Brunelle's, left my baggage there and went to South Edmonton and stopped with Mallette a few days. I left my boy there for a week and went out to hunt for land. I paid for my boy's board and remained two or three days at Mallette's when I came back from hunting land. I paid Mallette $3.00 a week for my boy's board. Mr. Mallette did not object to the boy staying there. I arranged for a week's board. I took my boy to Father Fouquet and remained a short time with Brunelle. I left my baggage at Mallette's. I was not working at Brunelle's but was waiting for something to do. I remained eight or ten days here and then went mining and have been at it ever since. As soon as I came back I went to Mallette's. Mallette told me my boy was at the barracks. Four hours after, the boy died. When I saw Mallette he also told me the boy was dying. Mallette charged me $5 for my boy's board before the police took him. Mallette never doubted as to getting pay for the boy's board. Mallette never had any doubt as to his ability to pay the boy's board and knew he had the money when he went looking for land. A man who is arrested for vagrancy in France would be counted as nothing at all. He is looked upon as a robber. He can get no position in the public trust, is disgraced among every one, even amongst his relatives, it extends three or four generations. I did not have a talk with my boy before he died. I could not read the piece in the paper headed "Man's inhumanity to man," but heard someone read it and I understood it. I thought it only right that it should be written in order to repair the wrong done to my boy. As to the local, I was sorry to see that in the paper.

Cross-examined by Mr. Mackenzie. The day after the boy was buried I asked Mallette what I owed for the boy, he said $5.00 I paid it. (Here the lawyers decided on having a new interpreter and Mr. Mallette was sworn.)

Theophile Mallette sworn, states. I live at South Edmonton, I keep a kind of hotel there. I know Louis Apoux and Henri Apoux. Both stopped at my hotel. They stopped there at different times. They owe me for a few meals about $10. I have not asked Apoux for it. I did not ask him for his boy's board. He came around and paid it to my clerk Perault. I was not at home. He paid me once for board. Before that Henri did not have fits. If I remember right he stayed with me when he was sick about eight days before the police took him. He started having fits on the fourth day. I did not want him around there while he was having fits. I had no room for him because he was having fits and I did not know whether his father could pay or not. The first time his father stayed there he did not want to pay full price for board. My price was $5.00 and he only gave me $3.00 but I agreed to take the $3.00 before the boy started to board. They were poor and I agreed for one week in order to help them out. I objected the first day he came to board, I told him to go back to the priest, but his father said he was to stay there. I told him I could not board him at the same price as before. The next day the same conversation was repeated and he told me the priest has a boy and there was no use him going back. I spoke to Const. Nunnley. He was present as he was recovering from a fit. I asked Nunnley to take care of the boy and take him away. He said he had nothing to do with it. You must have something to do with him. The government are obliged to take him. Nunnley told me to see Col Jarvis. Nunnley called Col Jarvis from across the street. I told Col Jarvis I wanted him to take care of the boy. I couldn't keep him there, there was no place to keep him. He was getting sick at my place. The priest told me not to keep the boy there. Col Jarvis looked at the boy who was on a small bench. The boy was looking first rate. Mr. Jarvis asked me if he had any friends. The only friend I knew was his father and he was down the river mining. I saw Col Jarvis again and said I can't keep the boy here on account of having fits. The only way he could take care of him was to get him arrested and said I did not want him arrested and he said this is the only way I can send him to Fort Saskatchewan. Col Jarvis told him he would be alright there. A doctor would be there and I said anyway at all to take care of him and I said if you do send him down, only send him for thirty days and he said he wouldn't do it and more than that, if his friends called for him he was sending a letter to Major Griesbach and he was sure Major Griesbach would let him go with his friends or father. I interpreted Col Jarvis and asked the boy if he had any place to go otherwise than mine and he said no. The boy could not speak English. The evidence attached to the conviction being Exhibit D. I gave that evidence with the following exceptions. I did not say for two weeks, I said for about eight days and I did not say that the boy was not able to work. I never asked him to work. The boy did no work for me. Const. Nunnley was in charge over at South Edmonton. At this time Col Jarvis and Wilson were J. P.'s on the case. About half an hour after the conversation the boy was arrested and taken before court, and after being convicted about three hours he was taken across the river by the police.

Cross-examined by Mr. MacKenzie. The boy came back a second time to me from Father Fouquet. I sent for Father Fouquet when the boy got sick, I asked him to take the boy back. He said he was not able to take care of him as he had a couple of boys. I asked him if the Sisters would not take him and he said they might. I asked him were the Sisters not obliged to take him and he said it was a private institution not a government one. I told him I couldn't keep him and the priest said you have some small children here who might take the same sickness. He told me to hand him to the government as they were obliged to take care of him. I understood Father Fouquet to mean that I was to hand him over to the police. The boy got a little better. Father Fouquet said his father had gone down the river and might be 50 miles from the Fort. He promised me to telephone to Father Dorais at the Fort and to do his best to find his father. This was on Sunday and said I will come over to-morrow and see the boy; but he failed to come. The boy was getting better so I thought I would wait a few days for the father. Next day between ten and eleven he fell again and had another fit. Between Monday and Wednesday I did not notice him have any fits. This fit was different to that he had before and did not last so long nor did he show it so much. Wednesday was the day he was taken before the magistrates. In the afternoon of Wednesday the fits came often. Part of the conversation I have related took place in the court room before I gave my evidence. The boy was told by Col Jarvis that if there was anyone who would take care of him he could go.

By Mr. Taylor. Did Father Fouquet tell you to take the boy to Mayor McCauley as he was a kind man? Answer. He never mentioned his name to me.

Louis Apoux's examination was then continued Frank Fortin interpreting. To Mr. Mackenzie cross-questioning he said he did not see Mallette himself I saw the clerk and paid him the $5. I had the local paragraph read to me at Mr. Brunelle's hotel by some Frenchman but do not remember who it was. The letter "Man's inhumanity to man" in the Edmonton BULLETIN was read to me while sitting in front of the hotel. I understand the letter to be just as it read, I thought it would bring dishonor to my family and thought those who wrote the letter were taking my part and expected it would help to re-instate my honor. My boy was born at Felix in 1880.

By Mr. Taylor. I had an interview with Mr. Mallette at dinner at Brunelle's hotel and I said to Mr. Mallette, how is it that you said in court that I still owe you $10. Mr. Mallette replied I beg your pardon I did not say you owed me $10 but I said if I would charge you what it was really worth you would owe me $10. I asked the clerk if the boy had insulted anyone or committed any wrong and Mr. Mallette said, no, only the trouble we had with the boy having fits. I then paid the $5.

Constable Nunnley was sworn and said. I know Henry Apoux the deceased. The information produced was laid by me. I went to Col Jarvis about the matter. Col Jarvis came over to Mallette with me. I think the boy was outside of the hotel when Col Jarvis and I had the conversation together. The reason I went to Col Jarvis was because he had the law book and I wanted to know whether I was justified in laying the information. The colonel said I was, after I had told him what Mallette told me. My sole purpose in laying this information against the boy was to get him shelter and attention while he was under these fits and as far as I know it was Col Jarvis purpose also. It was talked over in the court room; but I don't know whether Mr. Wilson was present. Col Jarvis pronounced the sentence and found him guilty. I had some conversation with Col Jarvis after the boy died. Col Jarvis said he was glad the little son of a — was dead, or b——r, I am not certain which it was. He also said he wished he had a half dozen more to put in his place. I am not sure whether he said half a dozen or more. This was after the boy died and outside of Col Jarvis' office on the sidewalk that this conversation took place.

Cross-examined by Mr. Mackenzie, he said. I think this conversation took place after the libel had been published. I would not be certain. I think it was the alleged libel that we was speaking about at the time and I think that is what made him so hot. As far as I remember, Col Jarvis said two or three times his verdict was right. I cannot swear as to the exact date when I was called in from South Edmonton; but can give date if my diary was here. I cannot remember as far as this one question is concerned further back than two weeks. The words I have used with regard to conversation with Col Jarvis are to my knowledge and belief correct and I think he said it was best for the boy he was dead. If Mallette had turned him out as he threatened to do, I know of no other means of disposing of him than committing him as a vagrant. The information I swore to at the time is true as far as I know then.

Re-examined by Mr. Taylor. Mallette had not turned him out prior to my service of summons. He was practically turned out as I was told that he would be.

On the case being summed up verdict was given for the defendant with costs against the plaintiff.

UNION SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

On invitation of the Union Sabbath school of Lacombe, a number of Sabbath school workers assembled in convention at that place on Thursday the 19th inst., delegates being present from Red Deer, Springvale and Hornhill Methodist Sabbath schools and from the Edmonton Baptist Sabbath school. Mr. Sadder, Presbyterian missionary at Red Deer was also present. Delegates had been appointed from Calgary and Edmonton Sabbath schools, but did not put in an appearance. Delegates from other points were absent. The business meeting was presided over by Mr. Standish when it was unanimously carried "That we form a Sunday School Union to be known as The Northern Alberta S. S. Union."

The two first clauses of the constitution read as follows:

1. The object of the Union shall be to secure by united co-operative action, greater efficiency in the spirit and methods of Sabbath school work in the district by the aid of conventions and to seek to secure the establishment of new schools wherever such are needed in the district.

2. All ministers of the gospel and two delegates from each school connected with evangelical churches in the district are members of the union.

The following officers were appointed upon motion of Rev. Mr. Barker who read the report of the nominating committee:—Pres.: Rev. A. Macdonald, Baptist, Edmonton; 1st vice-pres., Rev. J. Fernie, Presbyterian, Lacombe; 2nd vice-pres., J. Cole, Methodist, Springvale; sec., Geo. A. Reid, Presbyterian, Lacombe; treas., Mr. R. L. Gatz, Methodist, Red Deer.

The president then took the chair and briefly thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him.

By request, Mr. Barker delivered a very interesting address on the "Relation of the Sabbath school to the church and family" which was well received and was endorsed by several delegates.

Discussion being invited on the time and place of next meeting, it was arranged that the meeting be annual and held in the second week in July, date to be fixed by the executive committee.

The Rev. Mr. Barker invited the convention to Red Deer for 1895, which invitation was cordially accepted by the convention.

The president gave an address upon "The memorizing of God's word in the Sabbath school," which was listened to with much interest and endorsed by many delegates.

The district covered by this union is understood to extend from the main line of the C. P. R. including places thereon, to the northern boundary of Alberta.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Steamer Nor'West made a fresh start for Cumberland, Tuesday last. We hope she will have better luck this time in avoiding rocks and shoals on her long and tortuous trip.—Prince Albert Times.

At the gait matters are now going, and unless some powerful influence is immediately set to work to stop the war in ocean steamship rates now waging, the market will become sadly demoralized. The St. Paul steamship agencies of John G. Allen, A. E. Johnson & Co and Peter McDonald are out with the announcement of a rate to Europe and points in Great Britain of $7. A short time ago John G. Allen put down the rate to $10, and now he and his competitors drop $3 below that. This $7 rate is on standard English and the American lines.

A neatly printed little book descriptive of the historic city of Quebec and its picturesque surroundings has been received. The different points of interest in and around the ancient city are charmingly described, and there are fine illustrations of Wolfe's monument on the Plains of Abraham, the Martello towers the new Chateau Frontenac hotel on the famed Dufferin terrace, the old Breake-neck stairs, Falls of Montmorency, etc., "Historic Quebec" is sent free, on application to agents of the Canadian Pacific Railway, or the manager of the Chateau Frontenac.

Mr. H. Cinnamon, a newly arrived settler from the Battledore district and breeder of thoroughbred shorthorn stock, was in town for supplies on Wednesday. This is what the last issue of the Saskatchewan Herald has to say in regard to his departure: "In the departure of H. Cinnamon, Sr., his son and Hutchings & Watt, the Bresaylor settlement, and incidentally the district at large, lose valuable settlers. The wail of the pessimist that no one can make anything here is broadly disproved by the career of Mr. Cinnamon, who is only one of many who have in the same time risen from very moderate means to a degree of practical independence; and the success that has attended him is open to any who will follow his example. Beginning on a very small scale ten years ago he set about building up "a band of cattle, not scrubs," and with this object in view he steadily labored, attending also to farming in a general way. But as his cattle increased he found the available pasturage and hay land too small for his requirements and sought a better range, and thinks he has found it on the Vermilion, on the south side of the Saskatchewan, Alberta, where he and his boys have acquired land on which they can feed their stock in summer and find hay enough for the winter; and as he is a liberal feeder he says he needs plenty. The number and quality of his cattle are evidence that the Battle river valley is all that has been claimed for it as a stockraising district. The family take with them about 500 head of cattle and fifty horses and a full outfit of wagons, harness, machinery and all things needed on either farm or rancho. The quality may be judged by the statement of Mr. Paul, the buyer of Gordon & Ironside, exporters, that "the Cinnamon cattle were the best he had handled in the Territories." The climate, the grass and the water remain and if those who remain or others who come in will exercise the same care and judgment as Mr. Cinnamon they may achieve the same success and win the plaudits he did. His removal is the Edmonton country's gain, but not an absolute loss to Battledore, as his success is an object lesson that anyone can read, and will no doubt lead others to take up his methods. In two winters he only lost one animal by death, and that was not from starvation. He has no elaborate code of rules to follow; they are comprised in one sentence—short and easy to remember. It is simply this: "Keep your animals full."

W. A. FRASER, mining engineer for the government, on exploring party returned from Athabasca Landing on Friday where he has located a spot for boring near the Athabasca river. Before he left, the machinery had arrived and derricks were being erected. Considering that the outfit only arrived by Friday's train, the fact of the teams having been dispatched and work commenced in a comparatively untraveled district a hundred miles away from the railway within a week after their arrival here, speaks much for Mr. Fraser's management. He will wait here for the arrival of Dr. Selwyn.

On Thursday last the McKee Rankin Company entertained a large audience at Robertson's hall with "Danities" a drama of western life. The scene is laid in California, in the Sierras, Miss Jeffrey Lewis takes the part of Billy Piper and Nancy Williams who is the last of a family doomed to death by the danities, a band of Mormons organized to avenge the death of their leader. She lives the life of a miner, under the name of Billy Piper, in a secluded cabin in the Sierras and is despised by the rest of the miners on account of his girlish manners. Her identity is not disclosed until the close of the last act. The Mormons haunt her throughout the whole of the play, ever trying to shoot her down. The arrival of a school mistress Miss Patricia O'Neil at the miners' camp causes much merriment among the miners who had looked for a youth whom they had planned many jokes upon. As Alexander McGee McKee Rankin has a noble yet rugged part to act, which he does in a manner that won the approbation of the audience several times. The part of Billy Piper, was hardly suited to Miss Jeffrey who was much more at home as Nancy Williams. Miss Beth Ross as Sally Sloan, took her part with as much originality as the other characters allotted her and the caste generally is to be congratulated on the manner in which their respective parts were taken.

It is understood that some important changes have been decided upon respecting the Northwest Mounted Police. The numerical strength of the force will probably be reduced somewhat, but this will be compensated for by the establishment of three batteries, to be stationed at central points, and the improvements in the armament of the force by the substitution of the Lee-Enfield magazine rifle for the Winchester carbine now in use. Two batteries will consist of small arms and one seven-pounder each; the third will consist of a Maxim gun. The new arms will be purchased in England this summer. The present strength of the force is 934 men, in six divisions, stationed at eighty-nine points.

A cyclone caused much damage in the vicinity of Rocanville, Assa. Two weeks ago Mr. Bastien was the heaviest loser, nearly the whole of his buildings being demoralized. The track of the cyclone was only about twenty yards wide, but within that space everything was cleaned out, even stout trees being twisted and torn as if they were mere switches. Scattered along the track of the cyclone may be seen the mangled remains of poultry and wild birds; also stove pipes, pieces of furniture, clothing, etc. The roof of Bastien's house was carried a hundred yards away, and a calf tied to a stake was carried so far that it was not found for two days. John Orniston's house was unroofed and his crop slightly damaged. From the north Banks of the Qu'Appelle and little cut arm reports are more serious, the loss of crops being large. Messrs. Kinghorn, Street and others were partial losers.

CRUELY MURDERED.

A ripple of excitement and horror ran through the minds of our citizens when it became known Sunday last that a cool blooded and premeditated murder had been committed near Egg Lake two days previous. Louis Roy, a well built and powerful man, described as having grey hair and whiskers, came from Montana and took up a homestead near the Moranville settlement two weeks ago. He and his son aged 16 were camped upon this section, having chosen a spot near a small thicket for their camp. Little did they suspect that this thicket would be the ambush for evil designed men to harbor themselves; but so it was. The father and son were engaged in finding out the boundary of their section and the son was dispatched about half a mile distant to show his father the section post. This the son could readily do as his father had written his name in lead pencil upon it the day previously. It was near the noon hour, and during the boy's absence Roy was preparing the noonday meal. He apparently never tasted it, for while thus engaged he was surprised from behind, cruelly clubbed to death, robbed of what money he possessed and his body dragged into the thicket near by to be found only on his son's return. Two newly cut clubs lay near the scene and two trees newly cut at the back of the thicket showed from whence they had been cut and where the murderers had watched their opportunity for making the attack. They were not successful in securing much money. Roy only had about $40 on his person, having entrusted his money to the keeping of his son. It is evident that the murderers had watched their opportunity for surprise well as there were no marks of violence upon any part of Roy's person, except the head, to show that he had offered the least resistance, which, being a powerful man he could otherwise have done. Whether Roy was followed from Montana by villains who knew his circumstances, and knew that he must have brought money with him, and proposed killing or robbing him before he had an opportunity to dispose of it, or not, it is hard to say; but the fact that an attempt was made to hold him up on the St. Albert road is indicative of the fact that his footsteps have been dogged by some persons ever since he came here. No clue to the murderers has been discovered. The deceased has a wife and family in Washington Territory who would have come here after the husband had made the necessary arrangements. A post-mortem examination was held by Dr. McInnis yesterday and the body ordered to be buried. The inquest will be held this afternoon at 2 p. m. at Morinville.

Later. Word has reached town from St. Albert that a farmer has been arrested upon suspicion of being the murderer of Roy.
